Application Questions:

What is your total membership? How large is your officer core? How many members are on your email list? What is average attendance at

There are 45 core members in MSAN, who attend the regular weekly meetings and are key decision-makers. MSAN's email list has a membership of 450 individuals (subscribed to Msan-announce@lists.stanford.edu)

The average attendance at MSAN's events varies widely, due to different nature of its events. Its largest event so far this year (Ibdaa- Palestinian dance troupe) drew about 450 people. Our other large speaker events (Women in Islam talk, Jews in the Modern Arab World) typically draw between 125-150. We are also planning many big events for the Spring Quarter, including an event with Mustafa Barghouti, a Palestinian political leader which we think will get about 300 people and Reza Aslan, a Muslim scholar who was recently featured on the "Daily Show" which we expect 250 people will show up. Our film screenings draw between 40-60 and our Islam Awareness Month dinner/speaker series usually draws around 60 (since RSVP is required).

What percentages of your total membership are Undergraduate and Graduate?

75% UG, 25% Grad

What is the mission and purpose of your student group? (this response will be used on the online elections voter handbook)

MSAN is a non-religious, cultural student organization dedicated to:

- 1. Promoting awareness and fostering dialogue about issues that pertain to Muslims domestically and globally
- 2. Increasing the Stanford community's understanding of the Islamic faith and culture

Our primary goal is to promote awareness on issues affecting Muslims and the Muslim world. In today's world, marked by a growing rift between 'the West' and 'the Muslim World,' MSAN's role on campus is to promote cross-cultural dialogue. MSAN is unique in that it is the only student organization striving to shed light on common misunderstandings about crucial topics such as women in Islam, jihad, civil rights for Muslims in America, and crises in Muslim nations such as Afghanistan, Iraq, Bosnia, Palestine, and Sudan.

Our second objective is to help Stanford students understand the foundations of the Islamic faith, and also celebrate Islamic culture and enhance cross-cultural understanding at Stanford. Islam is often a misunderstood faith, as we aim to help students and faculty gain a better understanding of Islam, through talks given by Islamic scholars, dorm talks facilitated by Muslim students around campus, multi-faith panels, and dinners in celebration of Islamic traditions such as Ramadan and Eid.

Muslims live in every corner of the world -- from Egypt to Tanzania to India to Indonesia -- and their diversity manifests itself in their dress, art, cuisine and language. We hope to share and celebrate this diversity.

Why are you requesting Special Fees? (this response will be used on the online elections voter handbook)

The Muslim Student Awareness Network is, by definition, an awareness organization and thus serves only one community- the community of Stanford undergraduate students. Every cent MSAN receives goes directly back to Stanford students in the form of events that are open to the entire Stanford community. Because MSAN's focus is to promote awareness and understanding about Islam, all its programs are geared towards serving the largest possible audience, rather than a certain homogenous segment of the student population.

The positive response MSAN has received every year since its founding has encouraged the organization to broaden its horizons and deepen its programming. Our membership core greatly expanded last year and has continued to expand gradually this year, which has allowed us to increase our visibility on campus and plan even more events. And the generous turnout at our events, particularly our annual Islam Awareness Week, has demanded greater resourcefulness from the organization. In fact, our efforts and effect on this campus was recognized last year when we were presented with the VSO Organization of the Year Award.

Three years ago, MSAN was successful in its bid to gain special fees, which provided the organization with the means to improve and increase its programming for the past three years. Because special fees is a stable funding source, the organization has been able to better plan and execute events over the course of the past three years. Over the past 9 years, MSAN has enriched this school by organizing programming that has brought the Stanford community together in a spirit of fun and learning and we hope to continue to do the same next year!

What are the three largest line item requests in your budget and why? (this response will be used on the online elections voter handbook)

Honoraria: This line item will be used to bring these high profile and highly sought speakers to Stanford. Every year, we carefully select a line-up of speakers and events that will complement one another and be able to address the major concerns facing Muslims and/or the Muslim world. Current events, including the War on Terror, the War in Iraq, the Palestine-Israel conflict, and the soaring numbers of hate crimes against Muslims in America compel us to address such pertinent themes as US-Muslim world relations, Women in Islam, and the Relationship of the Abrahamic Faiths. Previous speakers MSAN has brought to campus include: Cat Stevens, Professor Asma Barlas (author of the book Unreading Patriarchal Interpretations of the Qu'ran), Hans von Sponeck (former secretary general of the U.N.), Mustafa Barghouti (former candidate for president of Palestine and receipt of 20% of the vote in recent elections), civil rights activist Mahdi Bray, Lawrence Pintak and Frances Deng (former foreign minister of Sudan).

Refreshments. The "Refreshments" line item will only be used for dinner events open to the entire Stanford community. Funds will go toward inviting the Stanford community to an open dinner during the month of Ramadan. The event will showcase food from various parts of the Muslim world. This event aims at dispelling the stereotype of a monolithic Muslim culture. Furthermore, Ramadan is a major Muslim holiday, and a particularly festive time of the year for one-sixth of the world's population. Nevertheless, images of it as being a stoic and solemn period persist. This feast will allow us to share some of that festivity with the Stanford community in a way unique to our cultures. In the past, this has been a very well-attended event, with about 200 attendees. We also plan to use these funds for an open dinner to celebrate the Muslim Holiday of Eid, and for a Spring Quarter Muslim Cultural Celebration Extravaganza.

Travel Fares. The "Travel Fares" line item will be used to cover the expense of travel for the speakers we hope to bring to campus this coming year.

We encourage you to take a look at our budget itemization.

What events/programs does your group hold throughout the year for the Stanford Community?

Islam Awareness Month is MSAN's largest event held annually in Winter. IAM's goal is to increase student awareness of issues pertaining to Muslims, to remove negative stereotype, and to promote better cross-cultural understanding on Stanford's campus. The student body walks away from IAW with a richer understanding of Muslim culture and the role that Muslims play in American society and the world, an appreciation difficult to attain in a classroom setting.

This year's IAM hopes to be as successful as in the past. This year, working closely with the Islamic Society of Stanford University, Vice Provost of Undergraduate Education (VPUE), Vice Provost of Student Affairs (VPSA), SASA, MECHA, BSU, Religious Studies, CSRE, Abbasi, Office of Religious Life, Bechtel the Department of Religious Studies, the ASSU Speaker's Bureau, CSRE, Dean of Students Greg Boardman, VPSA Gene Awakuni, The Office of Religious Life, and the Islamic Studies Program, to put on the program 'Taste of Islam 2005'. Our program includes a four-week dinner series that unites cultural groups on campus (Egyptian Student Association, Ethiopian Student Association, Black Student Union, Organization of Arab Students at Stanford, and AASA) to display the diversity of Islam represented merely on the Stanford campus through cultural presentations and cuisine. The dinners are complemented by talks by renowned experts on issues that unify the diverse populations of Muslims.

In addition to organizing IAW for 7 years, MSAN brings speakers that enrich student life and awareness of geopolitical issues pertaining to Muslims and Islamic culture. In the wake of the Russian campaign in Chechnya,

MSAN brought Lyoma Usmanov, the representative of the Chechen Republic to the United States. April 2000 featured speakers Salam Al-Maryati, Executive Director for the Muslim Public Affairs Council, and Congressman Tom Campbell. Later that month, during Africa Week, MSAN cosponsored a lecture by Ali Mazrui, a preeminent scholar of Islam in Africa. At the time when the situation in Darfur was getting the most attention, MSAN brought former Sudanese Ambassador to the UN

In the fall of 2001, MSAN cosponsored a rally in White Plaza with Peninsula Peace and Justice Center, gathering people of social conscience to protest the decade-long sanctions on the Iraqi people. Two years later we cosponsored the student initiative to protest the war. In February 2001, MSAN and BSU hosted a discussion about the incarceration of former Black Panther Imam Jamil al-Amin (formerly H. Rap Brown) led by his representative, Abdul-Alim Musa, former head of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, and prominent civil rights activist in the '60's. In Fall 2003, we sponsored a tribute to Edward Said, brought author Ghada Karmi in a talk entitled: 'Voices from Palestinian Exile'.

This year, we brought Professor Asma Barlas (author of the book Unreading Patriarchal Interpretations of the Qu'ran) to speak about 'Women in Islam', Sudan's Ambassador to the U.S. to talk about 'Crisis in Darfur', Author Larry Everest on inauguration night to talk about 'Bush's Agenda for Iraq and Beyond', and the Jerusalem Women Speak Tour, featuring a Jewish, a Christian, and a Muslim women from Jerusalem who spoke about their shared vision for peace in the region.

Event: Comedy Show

Judging by the great turnout and appreciation of this year Azzar Uzman comedy show we co-sponsored, we think the Stanford community would benefit from another comedy show, where they would not only be entertained but also informed about certain issues pertaining to Muslims and Arabs that are not easily discussed. We were thinking of bringing either comedians from the Axis of Evil Comedy tour or from Azzar's group, Allah Made me Funny.
